

RED OF STUDY, GIRL RAN AWAY

Friends Reported that She Had Wedded Employee of Her Father, but the Youth Vigorously Denies It.

OTHER WILL FORGIVE HER.

rs. Benson Says Odette May Marry or Stop Studying Music or Do Anything—like She Pleases If She Will Only Return.

Odette Benson, the fifteen-year-old girl who ran away from her home, No. 523 Forty-sixth street, Brooklyn, a week ago, has acquired a husband in her absence, she can bring in back with the assurance that the rental blessing, the second-story front room and three meals a day await her.

Odette is a remarkably pretty girl, her mature for her years, and she is a pupil at St. Patrick's Academy, St. Hamilton, and her progress was such that her parents decided that they would give her a higher course. She created she had all the schooling she wanted. For some days she was in a rut. Saturday last she left the house, ostensibly for church, as she carried a prayerbook and her purse, which contained $5.

She did not return, and no trace of her has since been found. The police of the Fourth District station were told her absence and a general alarm was at once given, but without result.

Some one told Mrs. Benson that her daughter had run away to marry a young man employed by Mr. Benson. When questioned by the police he denied having seen the girl, and Mrs. Benson is convinced he is telling the truth. "I do not want to drag his name in," she said today, "but this young man has been helping us in every way for which he is a fine young fellow. I did not object to Odette marrying him. If she were to come home and do so, I did not know there was a girl with her, nor did I know there was a friendship between them."

Odette is a headstrong girl. She is used to her age and, though she has never gone about much and never alone, she thinks she is a young lady and objects to going to any place where she is called upon to attend to her duties.

Mrs. Benson was born in France and came to this country with her mother a few years ago. She is strikingly pretty, with blue eyes, black hair, and a black olive skin. When she left home she was a blue-eyed girl and had a black and white straw hat trimmed with feathers.

PARK ZOO ANIMALS UNDER HAMMER

Director Smith Disposes of Some of the Surplus Stock, Including Two Lionesses and a Pair of Zebu.

WOMEN AMONG THE BIDDERS.

They Wanted Some of the Sheep for Pets and One Makes a Purchase—Seven Ewe Lambs Brought a Total of $36.

The annual auction sale of surplus animals in Central Park took place today.

Director Smith, of the Zoo, had charge of the sale and City Auctioneer Schoongood did the selling.

A pair of zebu, three years old, a full-blooded bull buffalo and two lionesses, all but one of the lionesses having been born and bred in Central Park, were sold out of the menagerie. From the sheep-fold were sold seven ewe lambs, thirteen rams and 1,224 pounds of superior wool.

The sheep were sold first. Most of them were bought by Charles Raynes, a dealer. Two women were among the bidders. One of them, who gave the name of Mrs. Charles Gray, accumulated a ram for $2.35. She said she wanted him for a pet, but refused to answer when asked if she lived in a flat.

The ewe lambs brought $36, the rams $17.50 and the wool $235. This money, placed with what was realized from the sale of the wild animals from the Zoo, will be used for the purchase of new animals.

Among the ewes was Elephant Keeper Billy Snyder's pet. This little one was reared by Snyder on the bottle from its birth, six months ago. It lived in the elephant house and although lions and hippos sometimes regarded it with greedy eyes and watering mouths it escaped playing the part of a meal.

Frank Bostock, the County Island animal man, bought all the wild beasts from the Zoo at bargain rates. He said the auction was the softest snap he had encountered in a long time.

The pair of zebu, "Dewey" and "Miss Anthony," brought only $35. Mr. Bostock nearly fainted when they were knocked down to him. He has been looking for a pair of zebu and this was like finding them at large.

Lady Rose, one of the lionesses, was born in captivity and is about as ferocious as a lioness. She would be safe in a cage with a lion and this lioness brought only $35, being about the cheapest lioness ever sold. But Mr. Bostock's lioness was a different matter. She was a lioness when she was born and as she is a beautiful beast her purchase was similar to buying diamonds with Confederate money. The other lioness, "Pinky," cost Mr. Bostock $120.

It was a pure chance that the animal man after the sale. "There isn't a beast in the bunch that will be worth less than $200 to me after I got them trained."

BRIDE'S SUICIDE DRAUGHT FATAL

Two Weeks After Taking Poison, Following a Quarrel with Her Husband, She Dies in a Brooklyn Hospital.

Seventeen years old and a bride of two months, Mrs. Kate Ehring died today in St. Catherine's Hospital, Williamsburg, from the effects of carbolic acid she swallowed two weeks ago. Grief over her action played no small part in hastening the end.

The girl eloped with Henry Ehring and went to live with him at No. 12 Beaver street. Ehring is young himself. He had frequent spats with his wife, and two weeks ago they engaged in a serious quarrel.

Ehring left the house, saying that he would never return. The young wife repented of her share after a time and went to the club-house of the Hustlers at Morris and Cook streets, of which Ehring is a member. She intended to beg his forgiveness and ask him to return to his home.

But Ehring had not been at the club-house that evening. She waited for him until long after midnight and then swallowed the acid on the stoop of the house. Members of the club carried her inside and called to the hospital.

It was thought at first that she would recover, but she worried about the chance of dying. Her husband visited her and attempted to revive her spirit, but it was no use.

"STOP SHOOTIN': LADIES IN THE WAY"

And with That Command the Battling Feudists of the Mountains Lowered Their Guns and Raised Their Hats.

RALEIGH, N. C., June 25.—John Rhodes, a mountaineer, is in jail as the result of one of the most picturesque duels ever fought in the South. Back of it all is the story of a bitter mountain feud to which is added a tinge of chivalry as fine as was ever displayed by a belted knight in defense of his lady fair.

Quaker Gap Mountain, which rears its scarred crest above the Carolina Mountains, was the scene of the drama. There had gathered a dozen hardy feudists to settle old scores and with six on either side a pitched battle with guns and revolvers was fought. Two men had been severely wounded and Capt. King, one of the leaders, had been killed when a coaching party made up of young men and women drove suddenly into view. Before they could recover from their surprise at the sound of firearms and the sight of the wounded men, a voice called out: "Hold on, there, boys; stop shootin'!"

There, ladies! It was lowered and beads were bared as the coach swept by with its load of pretty girls. It was the tribute of the fierce mountaineer to youth and beauty.

When the coach had passed the fight was resumed. The sound of the firing attracted the attention of the young women, who stopped and returned to the scene of hostilities. Again the fight was stopped and the participants induced to disperse.

The arrest of Rhodes followed.

HUSBAND'S KNIFE TOO MUCH FOR HER

Mrs. Kiepe, Nineteen and Pretty, Says Her Other Half Chased Her with Gleaming Blade and Threw Crockery.

SHE LIKES GAYETY A BIT.

Used to Dance on the Stage, but Now She Has to Be Content with the Mirthful Fishing Parties of Her Husband.

When Mrs. Helen Kiepe, of Long Island City, starts out to make a social call she objects to having her husband chase her with a knife and fire half the dishes of the household after her.

Mrs. Kiepe is a pretty blonde of nineteen, while her husband, Louis Kiepe, is a strenuous Teuton of forty-five. Her maiden name was Hansen, but she was known on the stage as Helen Gordon. When a girl she was a member of the Germania Theatre Company, in this city, and after that travelled with "The Run-away Girl" on its tour.

Some years ago, when Kiepe was proprietor of the Astoria Schuetzen Park in Long Island City, Helen used to go there with her parents and dance. Kiepe, while dancing the glide waltz with her one night, fell head over heels in love with her, and when his wife died, about two years ago, he, according to his wife's story, followed her about the country beseeching her to become his bride.

Eighteen months ago she yielded to his entreaties, and ever since, she sighs, her life has been sadly uneventful.

She says that Kiepe, who now has a hotel at No. 114 Canella street, wouldn't permit her to go to the theatre, refused to permit her to visit friends, and during the eighteen months they have been married took her out only twice, and then on fishing trips. Last night she was so lonely, she said, that she just couldn't wait any longer, and she started out to visit relatives.

Her husband, she declares, manifested his objection by hurling the dishes after her and chasing her with a gleaming knife. For these little attentions Kiepe was arraigned before Magistrate Condon today.

"I advise all actresses not to marry outside their profession," said Mrs. Kiepe during a heart-to-heart talk with an Evening World reporter today.

"Such marriages are bound to end unhappily, for the husband in the case is pretty apt to be insanely jealous. I have made up my mind that I don't care to be an old man's darling and the companion of his infrequent fishing trips any longer."

Mrs. Kiepe is back with her mother.

FIGHT FOR $1,000 MURDER REWARD

Two Men Claim Bonus Promised for Arrest of Man Who Killed Policeman in Rochelle Park.

CONFESSED SLAYER IN FEAR.

He Is Moved to White Plains Jail to Prevent Friends from Taking Him from Local Authorities.

NEW ROCHELLE, June 25.—Now that Francesco Rizzo has confessed to the murder of Policeman Maurice Ahearn, in Rochelle Park on last Saturday morning, and the chain of circumstantial evidence is so complete that District-Attorney Young believes he can send him to the electric chair, the question as to who is entitled to the $1,000 reward offered by the rich residents of Rochelle Park comes up.

E. Lukert, of Tuckahoe, claims he gave the first tip to Sgt. Cody, who arrested the assassin, but the Sergeant says Lukert's statement is not true, and declares that an Italian friend gave him the clue to the murderer and this man will probably get most of the reward. Lukert declares he will bring suit for the money.

The prisoner appears a sleepless night in his cell, but does not appear to realize the enormity of his crime. He laughs when he tells how he put five bullets in the policeman's body because he thought he was a loafer who intended to hold him up.

Coroner Welsendanger had him arraigned before him as Magistrate and committed him to the Westchester County Jail this morning to await the action of the Grand Jury. He will be taken to jail under a heavy guard, as it is feared that there might be an attempt to lynch him on the part of the many friends of Ahearn.

It develops that Sgt. Frank Cody and Policemen Fannelli, Devereaux and McSweney, of the New Rochelle police force, are entitled to most of the credit for running down the murderer, so the Coroner says. Col. Edward Lyman, Bill, head of the Police Commissioners of New Rochelle, said:

"The New Rochelle police have done nobly and should have the credit for solving the mystery. I am glad the murderer is in jail as the residents of Rochelle Park will sleep better now."

It is reported that the millionaire residents will present Sedway Cody and the other officers with a private purse in recognition of their success.
